Skeptics suspect Carmel's 'Art of Living Award' a façade for perks

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

IT'S BEEN likened to those notorious "pyramid schemes," whose objective is to hook the gullible, profit from them and encourage them to do the same to others.

Some have compared the Art of Living Award to a scam letter (send "X" amount of dollars to claim your prize), and others have called the Paris-based award a ticket to free vacations for the self-described academy.

Still others, including Carmel Mayor Ken White, insist on taking a wait-and-see approach to the award.

"I'm looking at it with a questioning look," said Carmel City Councilmember Bob Fischer. "I don't want to pursue it without knowing everything. I know one thing for sure — the city is not going to spend any money on this as far as I'm concerned. You know, they could mail (the award) UPS."

Others believe the awarding party is the one who receives the benefits of this award.

"There is no doubt in my mind that our village is worthy of receiving an award for our quality of life," said Councilwoman Barbara Livingston. "But the credibility of the award was lost when I learned we had to pay for it. Awards are given freely with no strings or costs attached. To reward the French committee for giving us this award does not make sense to me."

Soon after Carmel was notified it had won the Art of Living award from the Academy of Defense and Illustrations of the Art of Living (ACEDIA), it became clear that in order for Carmel to receive the award, it must pay up.

Carmel Mayor Ken White has been trying to track down just what the academy is asking of Carmel in ongoing correspondence with ACEDIA President Gilbert Prouteau.

Port-a-potty plan at beach creates stink

By KENDALL KIYM

IN SPITE of the balmy weather at Carmel Beach Tuesday afternoon, Helen Molz had to cut her shoreline visit short.

"I have to go to the bathroom," Molz said while hurrying by the proposed site of a port-a-potty toilet on the corner of Eighth and Scenic.

"That's why we're leaving," her husband Otto said, briskly walking by her side.

Several moments later, Carmel resident Barbara Stone walked by the site, a flat sandy spot slightly below the intersection on the path to the beach.

"I wouldn't be very happy if it (the portable toilet) were right near me," Stone said, glancing up at several stately homes overlooking the sea. "If I lived over there, I'd say no."

Residents and other members of the public will be able to voice their opinions about the growing stink over a proposed

AS THE congratulatory handshake was extended earlier this summer, the city is still trying to make out who was behind the gesture.

Despite its claims of self-importance, information on the Academy for the Defense and Illustrations of the Art of Living (ACEDIA) is, at best, murky.

Both ACEDIA President Gilbert Prouteau and Mayor Laurent Belley of Lorraine, Quebec (whose city won the Art of Living Award in 1988 and who traveled to Carmel in May as an ACEDIA judge) have said the Art of Living Award is similar to the Nobel Prize in its nomination process.

However, the value of the Nobel Prize lies in its reputation. But this award doesn't appear to have any reputation.

Despite Prouteau's declaration in a 1990 publication on Cognac that the (Prize of the Art of Living) has become "a national institution," The Pine Cone has contacted the following agencies — all of which report they have never heard of ACEDIA:

■ The French Embassy in Washington, D.C.

■ The U.S. Embassy in Paris.

■ The cultural affairs office of the French Consulate in San Francisco.

■ The State Department in San Francisco.

Peninsula's 'grass-roots' movement sprouting new leaves

■ Analysis: Anti-dam network has evolved to take on diverse agenda throughout county.

By PAUL WOLF

THE CLIMAX to the big fight against the dam was only last November, but the grass-roots campaign opposing Measure C might already be described as the Mother of All Battles.

For those who have forgotten, the electorate turned down the $100 million-plus New Los Padres Dam by a margin of 57 to 43 percent.

Because the proposed dam on the Carmel River boasted strong support of business interests, local elected government, state water officials and federal regulatory agencies, its defeat suggested a strong movement at the grass-roots level.

Although not the case at the start, the growth issue took hold during the final weeks of the campaign.

Now, nearly eight months into 1996, many of the same people who opposed the dam are hard at work, but the agenda is diverse: Opposing Rancho San Carlos and the Fort Ord reuse, fighting new challenges concerning water use and management.

"I don't like the word 'network,'" said Ira Friedman, a founder of Citizens for Alternative Water Supplies (CAWS) last year. "These are simply people from all walks of life on the Peninsula who share certain concerns and have had a spontaneous awareness. It is coincidental that these major issues have all come up within the span of a year."

Yet to say there is no cohesion to this activist set would be inaccurate.

"It's hard to say exactly how many people are involved, since they come and go on different issues," said Carmel's David Dilworth. "There are probably about 30 to 40 core members of this group. Some people are good at speaking in public, others at filing lawsuits, others at wielding petitions."

Were it to take a name, Dilworth said, Peninsula Quality of Life Network would be appropriate. "But that is less of a name than a description," he added. "It is a way of describing all the people who recognize that we have limited resources, limited traffic capacity and limited water."

As of this week, members of the group have had greater or lesser involvement on four fronts. Consider:

■ The POWR initiative.

PORT-A-POTTY: Plan raises stink

port-a-potty at a public hearing to be held during the 1:30 p.m. Forest and Beach Commission meeting Tuesday, Sept. 24 at City Hall. The meeting will enable citizens to influence the city in its decision to erect the structure, said Greg D'Ambrosio, assistant city administrator and head of the project.

"We put a lot of weight into what the public says," D'Ambrosio said.

Workshops reflect opposition

Two workshops were held during the summer to educate the public on the proposed project, one in June and the other earlier this month. At the second meeting, the audience was "overwhelmingly opposed" to the project," D'Ambrosio said, citing the following reasons:

■ Noise.

■ Traffic.

More cars would stop and people would get out to use the facility.

■ Health.

Foul smells, insects and disease may arise from portable toilets.

■ Safety.

Public restrooms are sometimes a gathering place for drug dealers, prostitutes and people looking for sex.

■ Air pollution.

"The meeting was fairly emotional," D'Ambrosio said. "There's no sense in the staff spending a lot of time and the city a lot of money if the project really isn't very popular."

The background

Jere Kersnar, city administrator, presented the Forest and Beach Department with a memo directing it to at least consider the project.

Seemingly perplexed as to what residents really want, Kersnar said, "It's ironic that for years we've had complaints from property owners saying the public uses their front yards as bathrooms. And they (the property owners) said, 'What's the city going to do about it?'"

Now many residents are protesting the city's proposal to put up a portable restroom.

Some believe their clear ocean view with its pungently salty aroma will be threatened by a big blue plastic port-a-potty emanating fumes reminiscent of a backed up sewer. D'Ambrosio said other fears suggested the structure would attract drug dealers, gang members and vandals.

Facility 'necessary'

After a tour of the site, Robert Kohn, a member of the Forest and Beach Commission, said the location was questionable, but a facility on the beach was definitely "necessary."

"I feel that since (the city has) given the CBA (Carmel Business Association) $100,000 for tourism, we're now bringing in more tourists and need the infrastructure to accommodate them. I think it could be done tastefully, and it's necessary."

Gary Kelly, the city's forest, parks and beach director, said it was too soon to verify what type of portable toilet the city was considering.

Meanwhile, as the public anxiously awaits another chance to voice its opinion, the site remains free of the sights, smells and sounds associated with port-a-potties.

International outlook

Several feet from the yellow tape that surrounds the site, a tourist ate a sandwich. Unimpressed by the controversy over the issue, Judith Bommeor, a native of Switzerland, said the lack of a facility seemed in synch with most of the California coastline: restrooms are few and far between.

"In Europe, our beaches have little snack houses with toilets," Bommeor said.

Carmel without the 'difference' is just another beach town

IT NEVER ceases to amaze me when a merchant or two in Carmel trashes city officials for enforcing the city's codes.

Every city enforces its codes, but Carmel's are stricter than most, so should a merchant be allowed to violate them with impunity because the regulations are stricter than he'd like?

ONE local publication thinks so.

But if you wink at one merchant's violations, doesn't that mean you have to wink at all violations?

THEN where are you? Pretty soon we wouldn't be able to tell Carmel from Barstow or Winnemucca! (Nice truck stops, but with flashing neon signs, huge "Sale!" signs plastered on front windows, etc.)

And will visitors still flock in to the merchants' shops when Carmel is no longer "different"?

Donbesillah.

Nevertheless, one local publication apparently thinks so.

IT never ceases to amaze me. It's the old goose-and-golden-eggs tale revisited.

TODAY'S QUOTE ... Edward Mulichay, a Ross Perot supporter in Dallas, angry that Perot decided to accept $29 million from taxpayers for his campaign:

"The people in this party believed him when he said he would give whatever it takes to change the U.S. government.

"But not only does he put us on the government dole, he doesn't even have the guts to tell us to our faces — instead, he tells Larry King."

(Ease up on old Ross, he just may be romancing Larry King as his running mate!)

WHAT'S IN A NAME? ... Gina Austin of Monterey wonders if you knew that:

■ Peninsula Office Equipment is located in — Salinas! (So is Peninsula Auto Wreckers, Peninsula Arts & Crafts, Peninsula Business Interiors, etc.)

■ Carmel Candy & Confections Co. is located in — Seaside!

■ Carmel Valley Disposal Service is located in — Castroville!

■ Sand City Chamber of Commerce is located in — Seaside!

■ Big Sur Bottled Water Co. is located in — Salinas!

GINA wanted to go on, but we stopped her and said, "Maybe the best thing to do when in doubt, then Gina, is to call a cab, right?"

"Did you know," replied the irrepressible Gina, "that Carmel Taxi is located in — Seaside?"

Good grief, is nothing sacred?

"San Fernando Valley Wants to, Like, Secede From L.A."

CAUTION ... At all costs, avoid 11-year-old Bart Perez of Salinas who will buttonhole you and tell you about "the cowardly dragon who didn't observe the Sabbath — he only preyed on weak knights."

Clink. (Also ugh.)

WHY that should remind us of now-retired Capt. Henry Gilpin of the Monterey Sheriff's Office, I don't know, but ...

A couple of decades ago, there was a grisly murder case in which the victim's severed body parts — arms, legs, torso, etc. — had been strewn off the side of the road, almost all the way to Big Sur.

AS a reporter for the pre-Bland Herald at the time, I asked Gilpin the next day if there were anything new on the case.

- Alliance Française, an agency that propagates French culture in Los Angeles.

Although Belley told the Pine Cone in May that Carmel was nominated for the award by the French Embassy, Bertrand Lacombe, press officer at the French Embassy in Washington, D.C., said he had never heard of the academy or the award.

Others are baffled when they try to find information on ACEDIA.

"I don't think they exist," said an official in the cultural affairs office at the U.S. Embassy in Paris after trying to track down information on the academy.

In addition, Dr. Suzanne H. Crowhurst Lennard, director of the International Making Cities Livable Council and organizer of the International Making Cities Livable Conferences, has never heard of ACEDIA.

"We have not heard of the organization," said Lennard, who happens to be a Carmel resident. "What we're being told doesn't seem to make an awful lot of sense, but then again we don't know. For all we know it may be a famous international organization, but I don't see why the city should not be able to get information."

Maria Ricci Dorsett, an official at the French desk for the State Department in Washington, D.C., said she has never heard of the academy and "can't find any information on it."

Sheriff's Log

HERE'S A look at the more significant items of activity logged by the Monterey County Sheriff's Department from Tuesday, Aug. 20 through Monday, Aug. 26. "Carmel" entries do not include calls from within the city limits of Carmel-by-the-Sea, which is under the jurisdiction of the Carmel Police Department.

TUESDAY, AUG. 20

Carmel: Deputies informed a theater manager that a back door to the cinema had been left open.

Big Sur: Deputies checked a residence and found nothing out of the ordinary after a woman reported hearing strange noises.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that empty beer cans had been tossed onto her property, which is situated next to a river.

Carmel: Deputies determined that a woman who had reported being abused was in fact delusional. After talking to a crisis worker from Natividad Medical Center in Salinas, the woman calmed down.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 21

Carmel: A woman who was taking care of her neighbor's dogs said she would try to keep the dogs quiet after another neighbor complained of loud barking.

Big Sur: A woman reported the theft of three rings from her home.

Carmel Valley: A man reported that someone removed $260 from his wallet, which had been kept near the changing room at an inn.

Carmel: A man reported that his duffel bag had been stolen out of a locker room.

Carmel: A woman reported that a man had violated a restraining order against him.

Carmel: A woman reported the theft of carpenter's tools.

THURSDAY, AUG. 22

Big Sur: Members of the Monterey County Marijuana Eradication Team and Special Enforcement Detail eradicated four marijuana gardens containing a total of 183 plants. The plants, which were being watered by a drip irrigation system, had a total street value at maturity of $550,000. There are no known suspects.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that she had never received a shipment of doors and windows she had purchased from a company in San Martin.

Carmel: A woman reported that her Volvo had been vandalized during the night.

Carmel: A pair of binoculars, a checkbook, a cellular phone and a briefcase were reported stolen out of a pickup truck. Entry was made by prying open the driver's side rear window. Estimated loss: $550.

Carmel: Two high school students were cited for fighting.

Carmel: A Walkman and a car stereo were reported stolen out of a vehicle.

Carmel: After parting company with four people who approached him on the beach, a man noticed that his dive computer and compass were missing.

Carmel Valley: A man was arrested on traffic warrants after a motorist reported seeing guns in the back of his truck.

Carmel: A man reported coming home to find his gardener sitting in a pickup truck in his driveway. The gardener, who stated that he was waiting for a co-worker to arrive, was told to wait on the street.

FRIDAY, AUG. 23

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her son had been injured while fighting with three local boys.

Carmel: A woman reported receiving several hang-up calls.

Carmel: A man reported losing his wallet.

SATURDAY, AUG. 24

Carmel Valley: A man reported undergoing a dispute with his landlord.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her son had run away from home.

Carmel Valley: A grocery store clerk reported being followed and annoyed by a man. The man was contacted and "discouraged" from having any further contact with the clerk.

Big Sur: A woman from Southern California reported receiving a call from a man who stated that the woman's husband and children, who were camping in Big Sur, were in "great danger." The man further said that he wanted $20,000 or the woman would never see her family again. The husband and children were located and found to be fine and unaware of the phoned threat.

Carmel: A woman reported that her daughter was being verbally abusive, and had also hit her mother's vehicle with her purse and kicked her father's truck.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that an envelope containing her mother's will and medical request form was missing from the bottom drawer of her dresser.

SUNDAY, AUG. 25

Pebble Beach: A woman reported that someone was constantly ringing her doorbell. Pebble Beach Security thought the doorbell switch may be defective.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her daughter was overdue in returning from a party. Deputies eventually discovered the daughter and other juveniles gathered around a bonfire in a grass field. The California Department of Forestry was called to extinguish the blaze.

Carmel: A woman reported that several items had been stolen out of her vehicle.

Carmel Valley: A woman requested a welfare check on her son, who had thrown a tantrum because of his parents' pending divorce. Due to a stay-away order, the woman was prevented from checking on her son herself.

Carmel: Two male juveniles were cited for shoplifting.

Big Sur: After a woman reported trespassing and damage to her rental unit, it was found that the property had been "red-tagged" by the Monterey County Building Department and is scheduled for demolition.

Visitor dies from gunshot wound at Carmel motel: Was it suicide or accident?

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THOUGH A preliminary investigation has established that a man visiting from Oakdale died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound Friday at a Carmel inn, it is still undetermined if the death was deliberate or accidental.

According to Det. Sgt. Pete Poitras of the Carmel Police Department, Rodney Seward, 36, suffered a gunshot wound to the head from a .45 semiautomatic pistol at approximately 11:17 p.m. Friday while in a guest room at the Carmel Resort Inn, located on Carpenter Street between First and Second.

Seward, who was in town with his wife to attend a wedding, was pronounced dead at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula at 2 a.m. Saturday.

Autopsy results will be released in approximately 30 days, according to Poitras.

The woman refused to leave, claiming that no one told her to move. She was told to contact her attorney.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported being battered by her male roommate. She stated that she was in "great pain," but refused medical attention and declined to prosecute.

Carmel Valley: A man was arrested after being involved in a physical dispute with his girlfriend. Both parties received minor injuries.

MONDAY, AUG. 26

Carmel: A woman reported that while she was at home her garage door opened three times and her car alarm sounded. She suspects that her ex-boyfriend bought a garage door opener identical to hers and had been using it to harass her.

Pebble Beach: Nothing suspicious was found after a woman reported that someone had been pounding on her front door.

Carmel: A man reported that his patio window had been shattered by an unknown projectile.

Carmel: A female juvenile was transported to Community Hospital for observation after sustaining a head injury while playing catch with a rock.

Big Sur: A woman reported the theft of her mailbox and post.

AWARD: Many questions surface

Although he has acknowledged his own suspicions, White, more than anyone in town, is giving the ACEDIA the benefit of the doubt.

"I've definitely formed some impressions already," he said. "But I'm the type of guy who wants all the answers before I come to a conclusion."

What is known

ACEDIA wants Carmel to sign an agreement saying the city will pay for ACEDIA members to take an all-expenses paid trip to Carmel, for the production of a magazine about Carmel and the academy and for the costs of marketing efforts to court the press.

ACEDIA also asked a delegation from Carmel to travel to Paris this fall to receive the award.

White said the city has not signed anything or made any type of commitment to ACEDIA.

Carmel was notified it would be recognized for its quality of life after Mayor Laurent Belley of Lorraine, Quebec, visited the city in May as an ACEDIA judge. Lorraine was the first international recipient of the award in 1988. It has been given to French cities annually since 1976.

In an Aug. 8 letter to ACEDIA President Gilbert Prouteau, White asked several questions about the academy and what it wants from Carmel.

One question, in particular, is what most people want to know:

"Why is the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea asked to provide the requested amount, rather than the Academy which has honored us with this award?"

This refers to a request from ACEDIA, a month after the city was notified it had won the award, for $30,000 to distribute the required publication to Air France and the French Embassies and to pay for additional publicity.

This money would be in addition to what the city is asked to pay for producing the magazine and for travel expenses.

"We have a real problem with that," said White.

Pay to play

In an Aug. 12 letter to White, Prouteau gave some background on ACEDIA and hinted at why it must ask cities for financial participation.

He wrote that ACEDIA was formed by the French Minister of Quality of Living in 1976, but has since become independent.

"By refusing subsidies in order to protect our liberty, we have had to ask for financial participation from the award-winning cities," wrote Prouteau. "All have approved; none have regretted their investment."

In the same letter, Prouteau explained that the 1988 award recipient, Mayor Belley, didn't have to dip into city funds to pay for the expenses of the award because he was able to tap other sources of revenue.

FRENCH

And it appears that White has heeded this advice, turning to the business community for help.

Thanks to offers of help from Carmel businesses, covering the cost of the required publication is "do-able," White said. Although hosting a French delegation in Carmel is not required, the business community would "take care of that," he added. He said some businesses have even offered to pay for the ACEDIA delegation's airfare to Carmel.

Prouteau seemed to back off on the award requirements in a postscript at the end of his letter, saying Carmel could receive the award without paying for ACEDIA's trip to Carmel, but Carmel would still be "left with the expenses of the magazine for which we sent you a detailed account."

White said the city did not receive a budgetary breakdown of costs, only samples of magazines other award-winning cities have put together. The academy wants Carmel to include a "dozen pages about the academy" in the publication.

"We've said we can't do that," White said. "Why would we want to include information on them in a magazine about Carmel?"

He's not the only one asking questions. "You shouldn't have to pay for an award," said resident Barbara Brooks, a former Carmel Councilwoman. "As far as I'm concerned it's a complete boondoggle and just a good excuse for the French to travel for free. I really think it is just a group that has figured out a way to have nice vacations."

White said negotiations are at a standstill because the "entire nation of France" goes on vacation in August.

"No one is more anxious to get this information than I am," he said. "I think it's important that we have information and facts before we make a decision."

He has asked ACEDIA to postpone its plans to bestow the award in October.

Authored by Protect Our Water Resources, the proposed legislation would compel the MPWMD to declare a formal water shortage on the Peninsula and place a moratorium on new water allocations, such as the one MPWMD water board approved earlier this month.

At present, the California-American Water Co. is operating under tight constraints because the state last year declared that most of its supply comes from unlawful Carmel River extractions.

POWR activists say the district should impose restrictions on itself to match the severity of the water company's plight and to reflect the seriousness of the state orders against environmental degradation along the river.

As of Monday, enough signatures had been gathered — validation by the county registrar is still necessary — to schedule a special election for next year, according to POWR co-chair Bud Nunn.

POWR activists lament that they haven't gotten help from MPWMD directors, who refused to schedule the ballot measure themselves.

"Hundreds of hours of work would not have been necessary had the water board used common sense, listened to the people and scheduled the ballot," Dilworth said.

MPWMD directors argued it was up to the group to put in the work to secure its own support for a referendum.

■ The 150 acre-foot allocation.

Many of the same people who opposed the dam now oppose the water board's allocation of the recycled water made available from the two-year-old Pebble Beach Reclamation Project.

Carmel Valley-based attorney Zan Henson, a dam opponent last year, said a lawsuit has been filed in Monterey County Superior Court in the name of the Monterey-based Save Our Peninsula.

"Each of these different issues shows that the people are not apathetic about what kinds of decisions are made by the powers-that-be and how they affect our quality of

Downtown Carmel doctor still making house calls

■ 40th anniversary: Russell Pratt's been at it for four decades, but isn't ready — just yet — to call it quits.

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

AT 70, DR. Russell Pratt hasn't changed his lifestyle much.

What could be considered his concessions to age aren't even really that: He sold his plane, didn't renew his pilot's license (he never got around to it), traded in his "big, fancy motorcycle" for a smaller one and cut back the hours at his practice to part time.

And with the vitality and looks of a man 20 years younger, Pratt has no intention of retiring — he just enjoys being a doctor too much.

He will celebrate his 40th year as a family practitioner on Wednesday.

Not only has Pratt been one of the few family practice physicians located in downtown Carmel over the years, he also has been an exemplary community member: volunteering 12 years with the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department and 15 years on the Mayor's Disaster Council, a group that prepares a game plan to run the city during emergencies.

In addition, Pratt started a doctor's rotation program at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula in the emergency room.

He said in the 1960s, the emergency room was just that — a room. There weren't emergency room physicians and so doctors took turns taking care of patients taken to emergency.

Growing up together

Pratt said family practice is a special field because it involves entire families and develops long-term relationships.

"I grow up with them and even grow old with them," Pratt joked, sitting in his stylishly-decorated living room. Several of the paintings on the wall are done by his wife, Sandra.

He said the fundamentals of family practice have not really changed during the last 40 years.

Dr. Russell Pratt marks his fourth anniversary next week as a family practitioner in Carmel. His first office was located at Dolores and Sixth; he's now at Lincoln near Eighth.

"And it shouldn't change in the future," he said. "There will still be a real give and take between doctors and patients."

He still makes house calls — a practice most doctors discarded in the 1960s.

"I've always believed in (house calls) and I still do," he said. "I just made one about three weeks ago."

He said that this might have to do with living on the Peninsula, since he knows several other doctors who continue making house calls.

"They're keeping one of the good ideas alive," he said.

Pratt said he knew he would become a doctor when he was 12 years old.

"I'm not sure why, but I had no doubts," he said.

He graduated from Brown Military Academy in Pacific Beach and joined the Army Air Corps., in 1943. He was a cadet in pre-flight training but because of a surplus of men, was transferred to ground duty. He served as part of Gen. Patton's third army before he returned to California and studied pre-med at San Diego State University.

He received a degree from the Medical College of Osteopathic Surgeons and Physicians and his M.D. from the University of California at Irvine.

He moved to Carmel in 1956, but had fallen in love with it nearly a decade before.

"When I got out of the service, I wandered up here on a visit along the coast," he said. "I had heard very little about (Carmel) and I don't blame them for keeping it a secret."

Never forgot Carmel

He kept the image of Carmel in mind during medical school and moved quickly when one of his classmates told him about a doctor in Carmel who wanted to sell his practice.

He bought the doctor's office at Sixth and Dolores in 1956. He was there until 1990, when he moved his office on Lincoln near Eighth.

Recently he went into partnership with Dr. James Michel, who is in the process of taking over the practice.

But Pratt isn't going anywhere yet.

"I've loved (being a doctor) and so I still do it," he said. "(My patients) will tell me when I'm through, and I'll leave without a struggle when the time comes."

He said the best advice he could give someone who wants to achieve vitality in old age is to "have happy thoughts and a wholesome attitude."

"Do the best you can and do what you really want to do — whatever that is, let it be your main aim in life, and it will be a good life."

And, following his own advice, Pratt spends his semi-retirement years watching his wife sing in I Cantori di Carmel, playing with his grandchildren, gardening, reading and listening to music.

This is, of course, when he's not working at the office, "tooting around" on his motorcycle or flying high above the Peninsula as a passenger in a friend's plane.

Economic Summit set for Sept. 6

THE THIRD annual Tri-County Economic Summit will be held from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, Sept. 6 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Monterey.

Presented by the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG), the event's agenda is scheduled to unfold as follows:

■ Focus on State Politics: Invited guests include State Sen. Henry

Mello, D-Watsonville; Assemblyman Bruce McPherson, R-Santa Cruz; and Peter Frusetta R-Tres Pinos.

■ Snapshot of the Economic Region by Nicolas Papadakis, AMBAG executive director.

■ Focus on Marketing: Local and Global Efforts. Al Martinez, executive director of the San Benito County Economic Development Corporation, will moderate a panel composed of Ned Madonia, chair of the Central Coast Marketing Team; Toni Livoti, manager of the Monterey Bay International Trade Association; and Lora Lee Martin, director of the the University of California Santa Cruz's Monterey Bay Education, Science and Technology Center.

■ Focus on Work Force: Research, Education and Development. Participants include Eric Alexander, labor market analyst with the Employment Development Department; Juli Edgecomb, president of the Monterey County Private Industry Council; and Dr. Ed Valeau, president of Hartnell College.

■ Focus on Regional Economic Sustainability, with Dr. Bruce Gritton of the Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute moderating a panel that will discuss the economic, environmental and social elements of a sustainable regional economy.

■ Keynote Address by Rep. Sam Farr, D-Carmel. Admission is $45 in advance and $65 at the door. More information: 883-3750.

Pain may be eliminated for millions.

(SPECIAL) -- A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis™" and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis™ relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis™ is an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work. Use only as directed.

Richard Lugo, owner of the Shell gas station in downtown Carmel, wants to do what's 'right for the community' when and if he pursues an expanded convenience market.

Lugo considering revised plan for convenience market at Shell station

Planning commission denies owner's 'pie-in-the-sky' plan to upgrade 24-hour store

By PAUL WOLF

SERVICE STATION owner Richard Lugo said he may pursue an expanded convenience market, but he doesn't want to introduce any project that clashes with Carmel's character.

Following the Carmel Planning Commission's denial of a proposal for a 710 square-foot market, Lugo said he is considering asking for a scaled-back project.

The owner-operator of Lugo's Shell-by-the-Sea at San Carlos and Fifth said he is consulting with his landlord, Shell Oil Co., to determine whether a new application should be submitted to the Carmel Planning Department.

The market at the 24-hour service station currently occupies only 150 square feet, according to Carmel Senior Planner Rick Tooker, who said zoning on the property limits that use to 200 square feet.

On Aug. 14, the planning commission, expressing concerns about the impacts of an expanded convenience store, voted 6-0 to deny Lugo's request for a zoning change.

"I have no problem with their decision," Lugo told The Pine Cone. "We are interested in doing what is right for the community. We are very image-conscious. You won't find a cleaner station, or one that spends more on landscaping."

"The city hasn't been able to control its character 75 years by approving every project that comes before the planning commission. This is what you have to go through to work in this town."

The rejected project also included improvements such as handicap access and renovated restrooms. Most of the project's goals, Lugo said, can be accomplished with a scaled-down plan.

The plan brought before the planning commission, Lugo said, was a Shell convenience-store prototype, "a pie-in-the-sky version of what we would like."

"It was the kind of market Shell would do in Seaside," he said. "I personally don't want to see a hot dog machine. I don't have a problem with the planning commission's decision."

2. BLACK/SHORT HAIR, M/N, 3 Yrs., Cage #GR-10, MC#57581. Sleek and elegant, black with white speckles. Some white whiskers too.

3. TABBY OVER WHITE, F, 8 mos., Cage GR-14, MC#57985. Sweetheart, petite cat, very lovable.

NOTE: Animals pictured are subject to prior adoption or return to owner/companion. Adoptions are to qualified homes only. If these animals have been adopted, there are other adorable animals available... come on out! AND, PLEASE, HAVE YOUR PETS SPAYED OR NEUTERED

DON'T LEAVE YOUR PET BEHIND!

It's one of the most common explanations we hear from people as they turn in their pets to The SPCA: I'm moving. And frequently abandoned pets are found by landlords after their tenants have gone.

There is no need to leave your pet if you need to move across town or across the country. Pets can be quite adaptable, and with a little planning, your companion can make the move with you. Here is some advice from The SPCA on moving your pet:

1. Crate or kennel train your pet (cat or dog) so they will feel comfortable during a trip.
2. Pets can be taken on planes, trains or buses. AVOID leaving them in the luggage compartment and be sure they are wearing identification.
3. Make sure your new accommodations will allow you to keep your pet or make arrangements in advance at a kennel.

Some jobs require frequent moves, so think before you get a pet. Companion animals should be a lifetime commitment. If you don't want to or can't take a pet with you each time you move, a pet may not be right for you.

We make a donation to The SPCA the first time you use our service.

life," said Henson, who is currently involved in three of the four issues.

Who is the majority?

In an interview with The Pine Cone, MPWMD board chairwoman Darlene Burklee said the group of activists is wrong to suggest it represents a majority of Peninsulans or the interests of all sections of the Peninsula.

"These are people who didn't want the dam and who don't want any growth on the Peninsula," said Burklee, whose district includes most of Seaside and Sand City and part of Monterey. "My constituents don't attend as many meetings as they do; they aren't activists and they tend to be less outspoken. But they talk to me and I know who they are. This is a group that berates us for everything we do."

True enough, not all of the activists who have taken up these grass-roots causes were dam supporters. For example, former water board directors Fran Farina, one of the staunchest dam backers last year, has protested against the 150 acre-foot allocation and supported other self-imposed sanctions for the water district.

The Rancho San Carlos development.

The project, to be located on 20,000 acres south of Carmel Valley, was approved by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors earlier this year and allows for 350 homes, 150 hotel rooms and a golf course.

Opponents like the dedication of open space habitat, but oppose the "scattering" of development areas throughout the ranch.

Opponents submitted enough signatures to force a November ballot measure, but County Registrar of Voters Tony Anchondo invalidated a batch of signatures, derailing the effort.

Last week, in a victory for the grass roots movement, Monterey County Superior Court Judge Harkjoon Paik ordered the matter back onto the Nov. 5 general election ballot.

However, Rancho San Carlos, joined by the County of Monterey's legal counsel, since has asked the 6th District Court of Appeal in San Jose to overrule Paik's decision.

Earlier this year, Henson, representing the foes of Rancho San Carlos, won a case that resulted in a limited restraining order against the development team, which was allegedly interfering with the petitioners seeking a ballot measure.

The Fort Ord reuse plan.

Opponents of the plan and accompanying environmental impact report say too much development is envisioned for the 45 square miles and fails to identify water supplies and funding for infrastructure improvements.

According to the opponents of the current reuse, both the voting members and the professional staff of the Fort Ord Reuse Authority have been "unresponsive" to the wishes of the public. A similar complaint was lodged against the MPWMD and Monterey County on the dam and Rancho San Carlos, respectively.

According to Nunn, a grass-roots group that may include some of the familiar players on other issues may be formed within days to fight the reuse as it is envisioned.

'Moral supporter'

In all, there are many groups with many names, but one group tends to be a "moral supporter" of the others.

"The common thread linking all of the groups is that without some kind of control on growth and intelligent regional planning, we are going to lose the Peninsula as we know it," Nunn said.

"The dam was really the catalyst," said Friedman.

According to Friedman and others, it is largely coincidental that so many issues have come to the fore simultaneously. Rancho San Carlos has been in the works for years, as has the planning process for the reuse of Fort Ord.

In response to the growing activity of this network of citizens, Dilworth has started a Peninsula Environmental News (PEN), a newsletter for quality of life activists, having published three times so far — Aug. 12, 17 and 21.

According to Dilworth, the newsletter's publisher and editor, a monthly edition will come out both in hard copy and on e-mail, and "alerts" and "updates" will be published on an as-needed basis.

LUGO

Livingston told the newspaper that a revised plan might have a better chance of success. "What was submitted was a uniform Shell market, not tailored to Carmel's needs."

Lugo said "more elbow room" for employees and customers is the prime objective, not his ability to sell different kinds of items. "We might want to put in a few loaves of bread, so locals don't have to go to Safeway at 1 a.m., but I don't want to compete with Merv (Sutton of Nielsen Bros. Market) by selling meat and produce."

According to Tooker, planning commissioners were faced with upholding conflicting goals in the Carmel General Plan.

On one hand, the general plan urges flexibility to support "local-serving" businesses, such as service stations. Historically, Carmel has had more gas stations and grocery stores than it does today, Tooker said.

On the other hand, he explained, the general plan seeks "to limit the number of businesses selling food items for immediate consumption."

Outreach Program brings benefits of library to you

By LYNN TRAYNOR
Executive Director
Carmel Public Library Foundation

SEVERAL YEARS ago I broke my leg. For five months, I was burdened with cast and crutches and found it very difficult to maneuver stairs or carry things. If only I had known then of Harrison Memorial Library's extraordinary Outreach Program! Started in the 1970s, this program regularly brings information, enjoyment and contact with the outside world to those who are unable to leave their homes or carry books they want to borrow from the library. Each month, some 200 items — books, magazines, large print items and books on tape — are delivered to residences, retirement homes and convalescent facilities in the Carmel area. Many of those who need the service have been long-time library users and find it difficult to come in themselves. This is their way, and ours, to stay in touch.

'Joyous response'
Staff and volunteers make the welcome visits, which currently number about 35 each month. Lani Premier, outreach director, speaks warmly of the "joyous response from those we serve."
"The recipients are invariably good company, having a wide range of interests and life experiences," Lani said. "So many are courageous in their quiet way. The quality of their lives, in spite of their limitations, is an inspiration."
If you would like more information about utilizing the Outreach Program, or you would like to be a much-needed volunteer, call 624-4629 and ask for Lani or Outreach.

'You think, well, you know, he's my husband, so he has a right to do these things to me.'

Local YWCA shelter helps battered women turn lives around

(Editor's Note: The actual names of Niki and her family have been changed to ensure their privacy.)

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

THE WOMAN on the other end of the pay phone asked Niki where she was and if she was safe.

Niki, 34, looked over at her car which held everything she had in the world right then, including her 8-year-old son, Dylan.

Dylan was confused. He was wondering what was going on and why they weren't at home. Niki was wondering where they would sleep that night. They were in the McDonald's parking lot in Salinas; it was loud with passing cars and people talking, and it was getting dark.

"I'm pretty uncomfortable where I'm at," Niki told the woman.

After a few more phone calls back and forth, a meeting place was arranged where Niki and Dylan would meet a volunteer who would lead them to a domestic abuse shelter.

Impetus to go

For nine years of marriage, Niki thought Jeremy's behavior in the bedroom was normal. It wasn't until Niki confided in another woman at Bible study that she started to suspect something was wrong. The woman was "appalled" at what Niki had told her.

But it was still difficult for Niki to identify that her husband's behavior was sexual abuse.

"You think, well, you know, he's my husband, so he has a right to do these things to me," said Niki.

At first, her strong religious beliefs also made her question leaving her husband.

"But I realized that God didn't expect me to stay and be treated like that," she said. "Even though a lot of people told me, 'You can't get divorced; God hates divorce.'"

She consulted her pastor, who told her to find a job and save enough money until she could move out. He also gave her a book with numbers of "safe houses" and abuse lines.

But when Jeremy drilled a hole in the wall from the master bedroom into the bathroom, she knew she had to leave right then.

"I just assumed he was watching my daughter, which would be his step-daughter, and that was when I decided to leave," she said. "For him to do things to me is one thing, but he just got worse and worse. I knew the next thing would be him molesting her, so I decided to leave."

Niki's teen-age daughter doesn't live with her, but visits frequently.

Leaving everything

Niki told Jeremy she was leaving him and going to a shelter, but he didn't believe her.

"I had packed my bags and took the car and left, and he still didn't realize it until he got the change of address notification in the mail."

Niki headed to a friend's house. She was scared. She had her clothes, her son and the car. She left everything else behind.

"We were married for nine years and to be out on my own again, with no income and in this area — you can't even pay rent with an (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) check, much less buy groceries and pay your bills," she said.

At her friend's house, she called a

"Well, yes," said Gilpin, "there is one development — we've ruled out suicide."

Clunk.

IN San Jose, according to Carmel Valley's Clark King, a man in his early 20s was being prosecuted for killing and eating a Trumpeter Swan and a Sandhill Crane, both on the endangered species list.

The judge, a curious sort, said he imagined that the Trumpeter Swan must have tasted a lot like a goose, but asked the defendant, "What did the Sandhill Crane taste like?"

"WELL judge," the poacher replied, "I'd have to say the closest taste to it is a Bald Eagle."

Clunk.

NOW THEN . . . Crème Carmel eatery on San Carlos near Seventh can finally be called both a restaurant and a café!

That's because the gourmet restaurant there has finally completed its expansion next door into what used to be Sobo's restaurant and bar, according to Crème co-owner Elizabeth Stokkebye.

BUT there's a distinction.

The new section is called Crème Carmel Café, is much more informal, serves a lighter menu, and is open for lunch and dinner every day but Sunday.

CREME Carmel Restaurant, the gourmet side, is open for dinner only — also every day but Sunday.

Co-owner Kenn Madsen, who chefs for both sides, touts several items on the new café side's menu — like spinach ravioli with rock shrimp, minute steak with fries and roquefort butter, OLT sandwich (crisp oysters, lettuce and tomato), and pork chops with corn cakes.

LEIGH Weimers of the San Jose Mercury News is in a snit because San Jose keeps getting treated as the Rodney Dangerfield of cities.

In other words, it don't get no respect.

THE FRUSTRATED Leigh quotes an article in GQ magazine by writer David Granger, which hurt. It really hurt.

Granger wrote, in part:

"I WAS meeting Andre (Agassi) in the lobby of the Fairmont, the nicest hotel in a city — San Jose — to which no one ever willingly goes."

Whassamatta with that, we wondered? Weimers thinks there's plenty wrong with it, and he can hardly wait until San Jose's new slogan really kicks in — "Small town heart, big city soul."

SORRY, Weimers, but that clinker will never fly. It lacks pizzazz, and it doesn't capture the real essence of San Jose.

However, because of our deep admiration for your town, Weimers, we offer the following trio of substitute slogans — any one of which could rocket San Jose right up there in the public conscience where it belongs!

1 — "San Jose — You Gotta Live Somewhere."

2 — "What died?"

3 — "San Francisco Is Only 40 Miles Away."

WORK with me, Leigh, we'll get San Jose on the map yet!

MISCELLANY . . . This Thursday is the birthday of Michael Jackson, who is actually 38 years old now, and also of Gloria Estefan, who is exactly one year older — and to save you doing the math, that makes her 39.

Saturday, Marcia Clark turns 43, and Sunday, Lily Tomlin hits 57.

SPEAKING of Marcia, who was the lead prosecutor in the O.J. Simpson debacle last year, it has been reported by four different persons that O.J., himself, played golf at Pebble Beach and Spyglass Hill last week and stayed one night in the Inn at Spanish Bay!

If this is true (confirming anything at Pebble is a major undertaking), it can only mean one thing — the real killer of Nicole Simpson and Ron Goldman must be lurking out there in the trees and bunkers of one of those courses?

O.J. has been searching for the killer at other golf courses since the trial ended last year, but he doesn't usually stay overnight like this, so I figure he must be on to something! And maybe not.

Los Gatos honors cats, Chicago goes for dogs

IN CALIFORNIA, many towns hold festivals in honor of what they're famous for. Last September, Los Gatos, or "the cats," held its first Cat Festival.

The event began with a Cat Classic five-mile run. Streets in the historic downtown section were blocked off and were filled with booths displaying cat-related items.

Cat lovers enjoyed a glorious day of feline fun and the event was so successful, the second annual Cat Festival will be held on Sept. 22 of this year. If you missed last year's day of the cat, mark your calendar now!

Dog day at Comiskey

Just yesterday, four-footed fans occupied the stands on the shady side of Comiskey Park, home of the Chicago White Sox baseball team. The ballpark's first-ever "Dog Day" was dreamed up to attract dog lovers — whether or not they knew a strikeout from an RBI.

A veterinarian was on hand to answer canine health and behavior questions, and fans were able to watch grooming and working-dog demonstrations. Chicago's Anti-Cruelty Society offered information about pet adoptions.

Dogs and owners alike had the option to cool off in the "Rain Room," with its overhead water misters. Two dog-walking areas were set aside for exercise and "business." Vendors provided fresh water and free dog treats while hawking the usual beer and peanuts.

We hope this event will be emulated. It's a unique way to educate the public about the responsibilities of pet ownership — and what a great way to spend an afternoon!

Strange attractions

I've been approached by several people who tell me their kitty-cats have a liking for plastic! They lick shopping bags, bread bags, shower curtain liners and other plastic items.

I'm told the reason may be that plastic bags are coated with a substance based on a fatty emollient to aid in separation between individual bags. Some experts believe that with the cat's powerful sense of smell and taste, it is often able to discern the fat smell, and cats like that taste.

Do your best to keep these items out of kitty's reach. They can be dangerous to its digestive system. Applying a bit of Tabasco Sauce or Bitter Apple may help discourage licking and chewing.

Shock treatment

When you pet your dog or kitty-cat, do you ever get a little shock? It's caused, of course, by static electricity. An electrical charge is created by the friction you make when walking across the floor. When you touch your pet, the electricity you've built up is discharged — and zap!

I'm told you can solve this problem with a product called Anti-Stat. By spraying a fine mist on your pet's coat, you can diffuse the static and avoid those shocking incidents.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Because many Americans don't face up to their future needs, the U.S. Treasury and Labor Departments have issued a folder titled "Top 10 Ways to Beat the Clock and Prepare for Retirement." In short: Know your retirement needs. Find out what your Social Security benefits will be. Learn about your employer's pensioner profit-sharing plan. If there is none, ask your employer to start one. Contribute to a 401(k) or other tax-sheltered plan. Put money into an IRA account. Start saving now, set goals and stick to them. Learn basic investment principles. Ask questions. Don't dip into your retirement savings.

SHELTER

shelter in Salinas, but had trouble getting through. After a few days, she felt like she was becoming a burden to her friend, so she packed up the car and drove to the nearest pay phone. She was going to keep calling until she found a place to go. She tried a shelter in Monterey.

Within an hour, she and Dylan were at the the Lawson House Domestic Violence Shelter, the YWCA of Monterey Peninsula's safe house.

The Lawson House

When she and Dylan arrived, staff members gave her a tour and introduced her to the other two women who were staying there.

That night they also had "group," where all the safe house guests get together with a staff member and discuss problems.

The first night, Niki wasn't ready to participate, but she did anyway. To her surprise she enjoyed it.

"It felt good to be around other women in my situation, even though there was really no one in my exact situation," she said.

Laurie Brown, shelter director for the YWCA, said stereotypes of women in shelters are inaccurate.

"Everyone thinks it's a bunch of women sitting around crying with black eyes," said Brown. "It's not like that at all. The strongest of the strong come into the shelter. It takes so much courage."

She said most of the time the women are leaving everything behind when they go, including pictures of the children. And the children have a tough time too, because they are leaving all their toys.

"That's their stuff," explained Brown.

Taking care of business

During her first few days at the Lawson House, Niki had to file a form that showed she was living with her son at a safe house, so Jeremy couldn't file charges that she had kidnapped Dylan.

Under the rules of the Lawson House, she was asked not to contact Jeremy for 10 days. This was hard for her.

"It was very difficult to do after being married for nine years," she said. "We'd never been separated that long."

After 10 days she called.

"He was mad," she said. "He said he didn't want to have anything to do with me, and all he wanted to do was see our son."

That's when she decided to file a restraining order.

"I wasn't ready to file for divorce yet, but I needed to be protected from his sexual abuse and keep him from taking my son away from me," said Niki.

Through the Lawson House, Niki was able to get assistance from Legal Aid, which helped her with the restraining order by going to court and filing the papers with her.

Niki was also able to reconcile her faith with her decision to leave.

"They have a film here, and I realized (by watching it) that it's true God doesn't like divorce, but God didn't like what my husband was doing either," she said. "Jeremy was the one who sinned first. He was the one who was abusing me, and so my reaction to that was normal."

Career guidance

She spent the first few weeks at the Lawson House finding out about child care, welfare and enrolling in school.

"I was looking at my welfare check and looking at rent, and I knew there was no way," she said. "I needed to get to work, and so I went through a program called ARBOR."

The YWCA referred Niki to the ARBOR Career Center in Salinas. The ARBOR program includes free assistance in career guidance, job-searching, on-the-job training and education.

"It's a really good program," said Niki. "If you go to a one- or two-year school, they'll pay for your school, your books and even help you get into an apartment. If you

Supervisors approve formation of council

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors approved the formation of a Domestic Violence Coordinating Council at its Tuesday meeting.

According to the resolution, the council was formed to help the Monterey County Domestic Violence Task Force "create positive change in the way the courts, law enforcement and community agencies in Monterey County respond to cases of domestic violence."

The council is charged with:

- Improving coordination between agencies, departments and the courts for the benefit of victims of domestic violence and abuse.

- Promoting effective prevention, intervention and treatment techniques which will be developed based upon research and data collection.

- Improving the response to domestic violence and abuse.

- Establishing procedures, conducting reviews, developing policies and taking all other actions necessary to further the board objectives of responsiveness to domestic violence and related issues, subject to the approval of the board of supervisors.

The 17-member council will include law enforcement officials, representatives from the court system, non-profit social service agencies and medical societies and at-large representatives appointed by the board of supervisors. All members will serve without compensation.

have a flat tire, they'll help you."

They also helped her find child care and helped fund a deposit on an apartment.

Through the ARBOR program's career assessment, Niki decided to become a special education teacher.

"I've always wondered for the last nine years what I was going to do when I went to work, and in the ARBOR program I was able to figure out where my niche was," said Niki.

She starts school in the fall.

"It's exciting," she said. "I went from being a stay-at-home mom to all of a sudden, being a full-time student on my own. It's been a drastic change. It's exciting and a little scary, but more exciting than scary."

On her own

A few weeks ago, Niki moved out of the Lawson House and into her own apartment. She still attends weekly counseling at the shelter.

When Niki returns to the Lawson House for counseling, she is greeted by hugs and exclamations from staff members.

She said she wouldn't have been able to undertake the drastic changes in her life without the support and encouragement of the staff.

"The staff is like a puzzle, said Niki. "They each fit together like a puzzle to create a supporting, loving environment."

Her husband is now able to see Dylan and has agreed to pay child support.

"I was lucky, because (Jeremy) is calm-tempered," said Niki. "He's very manipulative and he has a real sexual problem, but as far as beating me up and stuff like that, he never did that."

Niki has also started attending her church again.

The pastor has been very supportive of her and is also counseling her husband.

"Jeremy's doing really good," said Niki. "He's really making a lot of changes, and so it might work out eventually. But for now, we're not together."

"I'm taking care of myself for the first time in a long time."

Weddings, gifts, food, a whiff of Christmas and more. Enjoy.

It's not too early to think Christmas, says TOTAL DOG, and I think you'll agree. Imagine this dog wreath on your door for all Christmases to come. May will see that you get one of these Happy Holiday woodch-wreaths of your favorite breed in time for Christmas. But only if you place your order soon. They are handmade (one-of-a-kind, obviously) and sell for only $35. (Other non-seasonal "welcome" signs, etc. also available.) But be wise, order yours soon (no photos, please)! Speaking of Christmas, there's no end to the gift possibilities here, you know...like the just unpacked English notepaper! The TOTAL DOG, 26366 Carmel Rancho Lane, across from Barnyard. 624-5553.

Are you aware that TIGER LILLY FLORIST has probably the largest and rarest selection of orchids in town? And that they do such remarkable and beautiful things with them? These artists place a pot of exotic orchids in an Oriental or contemporary basket or bowl, add all sorts of greenery, bamboo, cat-tails, ki-wi branches, etc. and end up with an entirely unique, almost breathtaking creation! An extraordinary gift in many sizes and prices. Along with a complete selection of flowers at TIGER LILLY you'll find so many exciting and different gift items, you'll consider it a boutique, as well. Shop here for an out of the ordinary kind of gift - floral or otherwise! 7th & San Carlos, Carmel. 625-1029.

MONARCH KNITTING & QUILTS

It's almost Labor Day...school's started...it's time to think Christmas, maybe! MONARCH KNITTING & QUILTS has great ideas for projects...unusual Christmas stocking kits or patterns; holiday stocking or year-round socks; attractive adult or child's sweater, bordered with deer (in non-Christmas colors for year-round wear); quick and fun gift ideas like scarves & vests (ask Joan to show you how easy it is to make a reversible scarf!); sets of needles for knitters; adorable knitting-related tree ornaments; subscription to new magazine for serious knitters - and more! Open Sunday 12-4, other days 10-5:30, closed Tuesday. 529 Central, PG. 647-9276

ner. Carmen and husband Jon bring Brazilian and Icelandic flair not only to the ambiance but to the food as well! ## PENINSULA CRATING AND SHIPPING Wondering how to send Mary's extra trunks or Bob's computer equipment to their respective campuses? You can stop wondering with this reminder from PENINSULA CRATING AND SHIPPING. It is by far the most inexpensive way to ship items college-bound (if under the 1000 lb. minimum of moving companies). Far easier and cheaper than any other way, even renting a truck. And you'll feel secure dealing with this biggest and oldest shipping company in the area. They specialize in crating and shipping anything - no telling what sons and daughters need on campus! Call 899-7120 for information/pickup. 412 Shasta, Sand City.

Delightfully new to me, and maybe you - MONTEREY STONE CHAPEL. This is a privately owned wedding chapel of classical elegance with stone fireplace, arched doorways, ivy and candlelight. The owner, Patt O'Brien, has been marrying people in various locations, outdoors and in, for over 11 years. She is a minister who confines her work to weddings only. She issues marriage licenses, performs the ceremony, provides photographer and videos if desired, and recommends special services. If you prefer an ocean setting, she'll handle that, as well. At the old Ryan Ranch homestead, next to Tarp's roadhouse (a good place for a reception!) on Route 68. 375-8574. Cut & file for future use!

Garland's Window Concepts & Interiors

You've been reading about GARLAND'S WINDOW CONCEPTS in this column for sometime now, but I wonder if you realize that it's the same Lee Garland formerly of GARLAND INTERIORS? Yes, WINDOW CONCEPTS is the priority dealer on the peninsula for Hunter Douglas blinds, but under the same roof, Lee and daughter April are doing everything else from creating pillow-magic to upholstery and slipcovers. In between, all kinds of advice on furniture, rugs, accessories. You might say they run the gamut of interior design. And I'll add, they're going full steam! Let them bring their books, samples - and good taste - to you, at home or office. Call 375-5436.

ROMANCING YOUR HOME

is a delightful home accessory shop of lamps, mirrors, pillows and gifts of all kinds. One step inside, you'll see timeless classic and unique accessories - frames, vases, candlesticks, silk flowers (so real you have to touch!), lampshades, candles, throws - a showcase of ideas for every budget. Let me warn you, you won't be able to resist romancing your home abut, or a friend's home, but it's time for that isn't it? Attractive complimentary gift wrapping, also. Open Mon-Sat 10 to 5:30, closed Sunday. 26366 Carmel Rancho Lane, Carmel (across from the Barnyard). 625-0224. P.S. Ask to see the "wave" bowls and the beautiful, affordable art glass!

Allaires seize perfect time to open fitness center in CV

Couple's new endeavor caters to 40ish crowd seeking lifestyle change

By SCOTT A. BROWN

FOR MATT and Carol Allaire, making their dream come true was heavier on sweat than it was on blood and tears.

Sweethearts at Carmel High School, the Allaires got married in 1985 and set about the task of establishing their careers and raising a family. Matt, a 1977 graduate of CHS, worked in his family's business, Allaire Insurance, a Carmel retail insurance firm founded in 1947. Carol, a 1976 graduate of CHS, toiled as a manager in Monterey County's accounting department.

"What was missing," Matt said, "was fun."

For two decades, Matt, an avid weightlifter since eighth grade, envisioned himself operating his own fitness center. It didn't need to be fancy — just some free-weights and enough cardiovascular equipment to work up a good sweat.

It would be long on exercise fundamentals and short on fad classes and specialized machines. He mentioned the possibility to his wife nightly, but it never seemed the responsible thing to do.

Until one day when Carol came home after a particularly bad day at the office. "Matt," she daydreamed, "you know that old bank building down the road..."

The bank building in question sits on the perimeter of the Mid Valley Shopping Center. Having been without a tenant for eight years, it has been mainly home to Christmas trinket sales and dog shows.

Since May 7, however, the building has housed the 3,000 square foot incarnation of the Allaires' vision, the Mid Valley Fitness Center.

'Ready for a change'

"We opened the facility because our family was ready for a change," said Carol, 37, who earlier this year left her job with the county. "Even with the debt we incurred, this is actually a stress reducer. It's more fun emotionally."

"Carol and I think of success here the same way we think of success in exercise," Matt, 36, said. "We gauge success on how we cultivate an optimistic internal feeling — if you're walking better, sleeping better and your clothes are fitting better. Out of that feeling, motivation increases as well as intensity."

True to Matt's original vision, Mid Valley Fitness Center is nothing fancy. It consists of brand new free-weights, weight machines and cardiovascular machines. It is openly spaced and naturally lit from eastern bay windows.

"All of the facilities I've been to either have been hardcore or more 'club'," Matt said. "I didn't like either. This isn't a tennis club mentality. I wanted a place to lift weights, period. Here, we have a basic, strict facility for all physical conditions."

"Much of what is important about exercise we knew 10 years ago. Lots of the innovations that have been made since have lead to misconceptions about what constitutes effective exercise for men and women. It's just building a better mousetrap."

Caution! Proceed slowly; avoid hills and curves

LAST WEEK I asked you to run/walk for 20 minutes, three times a week.

For both of you still reading this column, I want to expand the lesson.

You are probably discouraged now because it is so hard to run. And you are right, it is. But there is a good chance that you are trying too hard. Remember: S-L-O-W. Even running slowly is hard, but it's not as painful as it could be.

And avoid hills. If you have to go over a hill, or even up a gentle incline, walk.

If you can, stay away from corners. They break your rhythm and complicate your entire life. Slow down and walk around corners.

Here is your running goal: Work your heart enough to build it up and make it stronger.

There's a universally accepted test to determine if you are getting your maximum heart benefits — subtract your age from 220, then take 70 percent of that (80 percent for the already fit) to get your ideal exercise heart rate.

For example, if you are 40 years old, take 40 from 220 to get 180, then 70 percent of 180 is an exercise heart rate of 126. So you want to exercise hard enough to get your pulse (heart) rate in the 126 range, for 20 minutes, three times a week.

Try this: After running five to 10 minutes, stop and touch the base of your thumb, or the side of your neck, count your pulse for 10 seconds and multiply by six. If the total is over 140 (for our 40-year-old example), you are working too hard. If it's under 110, you need to step it up.

More on this next week.

T-rific T-shirt
You won't believe the painting we are reproduc-

The T-shirt alone is worth the entry fee. It is destined to be a collectible, just like last year's T-shirt, painted by Edward Norton Ward. (We never fail to get positive comments when we wear last year's shirt, especially at other races, in other cities.) The beautiful original painting will be auctioned off at the brunch after the race on Sunday, Oct. 6.

Which brings me to an interesting subject. The Carmel City Council has given us approval, for this year only, to sell the T-shirts and sweatshirts, at the post-race brunch at Del Mar parking lot at the end of Ocean Avenue on race morning.

The council, justifiably, struggles with

Annual Red-Gray game scheduled for Friday at CHS

Benefit BBQ to follow varsity game

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE ANNUAL Red-Gray game, the kickoff to the Carmel High School varsity football season, is scheduled for 5:45 p.m. Friday at Bardarson Field on the CHS campus.

The scrimmage, featuring the varsity roster's 34 players, will give Carmel fans a preview of the upcoming season, which officially begins at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 6 with a non-league game against Monterey High at Monterey Peninsula College. It will be the first time the two schools have faced off in football in 10 years, according to Mike Kelly, CHS varsity head coach.

Carmel's first home game will be the following week — Saturday, Sept. 14 — when Harbor High pays a visit.

The varsity's Red-Gray contest will be preceded at 4:15 p.m. Friday with a game between the 45 players suiting up for the CHS frosh-soph team. Mark Spindler returns as that team's head coach.

Following the varsity scrimmage, which Kelly said should last about an hour, will be a benefit barbecue for the football program staged by "The Chain Gang." For $7, which includes admission, fans will be treated to a dinner consisting of chicken, corn on the cob, beans, salad and bread.

NEXT WEEK: The Pine Cone will publish a special "FOOTBALL '96" section, featuring a preview of all the area high school and junior college teams, a rundown on the respective leagues and interesting features. Don't miss it in the Sept. 5 issue of The Pine Cone.

THE HARMON FOOTBALL FORECAST

The Harmon Football Forecast, one of the country's most popular sports features, will appear in The Carmel Pine Cone each week during the 1996 football season. Now in its 40th year, the Harmon Forecast is published in more than 225 newspapers across the country. Jim Harmon uses a mathematical formula to determine ratings for each of the nearly 700 college and pro football teams he follows each fall. And, though boasting a forecasting accuracy equal to any in the nation, the Harmon Forecast makes no wild claims of unbelievable guessing percentages. Harmon has a proven accuracy over the past 39 years of between 73 and 78 percent for college predictions and 61 to 75 percent for NFL picks. If you would like to advertise in The Harmon Football Forecast, please give our sales staff a call at 624-0162.

Letters to the Editor

Letters should not exceed 350 words and are subject to editing. Letters must be typed and include name, address, telephone number and signature. Those that have previously appeared in other publications will be given last priority.

Spearheaded survey

Dear Editor:
Your excellent article on the Carmel Historic Survey (Pine Cone, Aug. 22) lacked recognition of the superb leadership role played by Enid Thompson Sales.

She was responsible for its birth, recruited an enthusiastic group of volunteers to survey their neighborhoods, organized training sessions and effectively managed the project to successful conclusion!

She must have spent hundreds of hours on this important effort.

All Carmelites owe Enid Sales a deep debt of gratitude for this successful and important effort to record a vital part of the heritage of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Becky and Lindsay Hanna, Carmel

A sanitary solution

Dear Editor:
I'm writing to comment on recent letters expressing concern about the proposed installation of portable toilets at the foot of Scenic and Eighth: Sharon Hudson Acton (July 11) and Natalie Nickell (Aug. 15).

I, too, am a Carmel resident and appreciate our beautiful beach and the inspiring walk along Scenic Drive.

I often spend an entire day at the beach with my books and lunch, and have appreciated the installation of toilet facilities at Scenic and Santa Lucia. They are discreetly placed behind an attractive fence and landscaping and do not offend the eye. Perhaps they are too subtle to have been noticed by Ms. Acton or Ms. Nickell.

Particularly around the Scenic and Eighth area, I have seen males urinating in the bushes and parents taking small children there for the same reason. This is a very unsanitary condition and certainly does not leave the beach in a "relatively unspoiled condition" as desired by Ms. Acton.

The facilities at Scenic and Santa Lucia have not become the "filthy, stinky, contaminated nightmare" that Ms. Nickell fears. In fact, they are always sparkling clean and odor free.

The Carmel City Council should be commended for its foresight, not castigated for trying to provide much-needed facilities for both our residents and our visitors.

It's a long walk from the Scenic and Eighth to 11th area to the permanent restroom north of Ocean and west of Scenic. I know that the installation of toilet facilities at Eighth and Scenic will answer a proven need and will not detract from the beauty of our wonderful beach.

Jeanne Cavallini, Carmel

Mid-summer Christmas

Dear Editor:
Joe Fitzpatrick grasped the opportunity to editorialize on yokels, vocals and the California Rodeo several weeks ago. I wish Mr. Fitzpatrick could look at the positive benefits the rodeo offers our community at large.

Monterey County, which depends heavily on tourism, has been ravaged by earthquakes and floods which have turned over tourist dollars to other parts of the state. The California Rodeo generates $18 million for our local economy and offers our county a mid-summer Christmas.

The rodeo gives the greater community charities more than $250,000 in revenue to support projects that benefit us all.

The California Rodeo is the catalyst for forming a new board, Public Recreation Unlimited. The charge of this board, made up of diverse cultures and genders, is to raise $8.5 million to create a new year-round multi-use sports/entertainment complex.

The complex will provide the youth of our area the opportunity to positively expand their energies and enhance the relationships and attitudes generated through

Whither the City of Carmel police blotter?

Dear Editor:
Would it be possible for The Pine Cone to publish a weekly report of the "most significant entries" from the Carmel Police Department each week?

Your publishing of the Monterey County Sheriff's Log weekly is informative, but does not address the incidents within Carmel-by-the-Sea itself.

The police problems of Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach, while interesting, do not have the same significance as the police activities right here in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

I note that your sister publication, the Monterey Times, carries the Monterey Police Department "Police Blotter" each week.

It would be of great service if those of us who live in Carmel could be made aware of significant activities of the Carmel Police Department on a weekly basis as well.

If there is a reason that the Carmel Police Department log is not being published, may the public be made aware of this reason?

George J. Paul, Carmel

(Editor's Note: In response to the letter writer and inquiries on this subject from other residents, Carmel Chief of Police Don Fuselier said the department is "currently considering the possibility" of developing a daily police log, and is looking at freeing up staff time to allow for its creation. If and when a daily log becomes available, Pine Cone readers can expect a "City of Carmel Police Blotter" to become a weekly feature in the newspaper. In the interim, The Pine Cone will continue to publish stories that document police log items of significance.)

athletic programs.

Annual special event attendance figures show that the California Rodeo is No. 4 in Monterey County. When this facility is a year-round, sports/multi-use facility the numbers and value will be truly impressive.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, I hope that you can step off your cloud and enjoy the benefits of an activity that helps to improve the quality of life and results in a stronger, richer community.

Sam Eastman, Past President
California Rodeo, Salinas

Church misrepresented

Dear Editor:
I read with interest your lead article in the Aug. 1 issue of the Pine Cone. Somehow Carmel Presbyterian's alleged "split in two" took precedence over the AT&T tournament celebrating 50 years and even The Carmel Pine Cone's own prestigious awards at the California Newspaper Publishers Association.

My question to you is, "What split?" You quote two people, out of a membership of somewhere in the 700 range, as being unhappy with the leadership at Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Supposedly, "some members who support Getz" have also left. The numbers sound small — you quote only two, and according to my statistics, that's less than 1 percent. I challenge you to find any organization that numbers in the 700s that doesn't have a few individuals unhappy with direction or leadership.

As for me and my family, we have been attending the church for several years. We became members this last year. Why? Because the church is growing! It is full of energy, enthusiasm and wonderful programs for youth, adults and seniors.

It is an "alive" church, and one we are proud to attend. If there's a split, I'd like to see it. What I "see" are people actively working for improvements. I see Christ's love and spirit at work in our church, in our minister and in our church leaders. It's a wonderful place to worship our Lord.

If you want to write about Mr. Getz's lawsuit and/or his complaints, that's fine.

It's news. But you misrepresent the facts when you say our church is divided "like the Red Sea during the time of Moses."

It's simply not true. But, I'm sure this "news" won't be on the front page.

Janice Harrel, Monterey

Local group unprepared?

Dear Editor:
On Aug. 6, I was backpacking in the Sierra Nevada Mountains north of Thomas Edison Reservoir. I encountered a group of teen-agers walking up toward Gondale Pass. They were a church group from Carmel.

Some of the teen-agers seemed to be doing fairly well while others were apparently in some distress, including an adult who stated he was not doing well. Also, I observed one young man attempting to drink from the stream, not knowing whether or not the water was filtered.

I was surprised to learn the group had hiked 12 miles on their first day from Lake Edison at 7,700 feet over Silver Pass at 10,880 feet, and they were now hiking from near Chief Lake over Gondale Pass at 10,650 feet toward a campsite somewhere near Graveyard Meadows. That is a lot of uphill hiking for the first two days of a hike.

When I expressed concern to the group's leader regarding the length of the hike on their first day, the leader stated he was giving the group a "challenge" hike.

Having hiked the Sierras since 1972, I have observed hikers become ill due to over-exertion at higher altitude without sufficient acclimation. In addition, I have learned the benefits of filtering or treating the stream to protect oneself from water-borne infections due to the use of livestock on the trail.

If I were a member of this congregation, I would insist on some safeguards built into the next backpacking trip. For example, hikers should only walk three or four miles on the first day and then camp, thereby allowing them to get used to the altitude. In addition, hikers are strongly advised to bring along microfiltering pumps to avoid a case of the Giardia "trots."

The Sierras have been a lifelong source

Remembering the Klosses — Gene & Phillips

Dear Editor:
Apparently our local newspapers were not notified about the deaths of two persons who were active in Carmel's early art colony: the etcher, Gene Kloss, and her poet husband, Phillips Kloss.

Gene passed away at their Taos, N.M., home June 24 just one month short of her 95th birthday. She is buried there near Phillips, who preceded her in death.

Originally residents of San Francisco's East Bay area, the couple often spent courting days on the Monterey Peninsula — Gene painting, Phillips lauding the beauty of the region.

After a 1925 marriage the Klosses frequently rented a cottage in Carmel-by-the-Sea and were active in the arts and crafts group (together with such people as DeNeale Morgan, Arthur Vachell, George and Catherine Seideneck, "Mollie" Maguire, Ferdinand Burgdorff, Louise Fisher MacDougal, "Jennie" Short Cannon, Rowena Meeks Abdy and the Misses Culbertson and Johnson).

In 1927, the Klosses helped form the Carmel Art Association. In fact, Gene Kloss is the first and only-known woman member ever made a National Academician.

That honor was bestowed upon her in 1970, long after the Klosses had moved to Taos and Gene become internationally famous.

To read more about the etcher's whirlwind career, look up the Carmel Art Association: A History, which is shelved in local libraries or can be purchased at the Carmel Art Association.

of personal renewal for me because the person who took me on my first hike designed the hike for the group as a whole and not just for the most fit. This allowed all of us the time to enjoy the surrounding beauty.

Future at Fort Ord

Dear Editor:

"Carmel council, residents say base reuse a threat to village character." That Aug. 8 Pine Cone headline restored my faith that we could stop the "City of Fort Ord."

Are our representatives (mayors, council members, supervisors, state senator, assemblymen and U.S. senators and representative) finally getting the message that we never had the opportunity to vote on becoming the steward of Fort Ord lands and that we are not willing to support it with our tax funds?

This is the direct responsibility of the U.S. Department of Defense. It is also its direct responsibility to remove all danger to occupants.

The department's efforts so far have been dangerously inadequate, according to Curt Gandy, president of the Fort Ord Toxic Project, a nonprofit public benefit corporation to monitor the cleanup of the base prior to occupancy.

"Free Land" as espoused and promoted by our shortsighted representatives has become expensive beyond their ability to foresee and comprehend. Their grossly exaggerated need for the immediate acceptance of this land to offset the loss of income from the military has proved to be just that — grossly exaggerated.

The Army must be required to retain all lands until:

■ Each parcel has been proven to be safe by disinterested experts;

■ A reputable party comes forward with adequate funds for required infrastructure; and

■ There is an adequate supply of water. To accomplish the preservation of our quality of life on the Peninsula, every concerned citizen should contact all of our representatives demanding that no more Fort Ord land be accepted until it is absolutely safe and developable.

About the fitness center

Mid Valley Fitness Center is located at 401 Mid Valley Center. It is open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, and closed on Sunday. More information can be obtained by calling 625-3668.

Allaires had all of their equipment custom built to accommodate all levels of fitness. Matt worked with engineers to design equipment with range, grip and adjustability that made it accessible to a wider range of users.

"For those we wanted to have in our gym, this is what we thought they'd feel comfortable with," Matt said.

Meanwhile, Matt is still able to operate Allaire Insurance, which he moved in May from the Carmel Valley Village to Mid Valley Shopping Center. And the couple's eventual goal is for the fitness center to consume the entire building. In doing so, they would hope to develop a separate aerobics room and a day-care center.

"For now," Matt said, "we want to do something as well as we possibly can — getting our clients to exercise with good results. Even if we stay where we are, this is a wonderful change. I can spend more time with Carol and the girls (Danielle, 8, and Larissa, 6, who both attend Tularcitos School). This is a dream come true."

Grand Prix tops slate at Laguna Seca next week

THE TOYOTA Grand Prix of Monterey, featuring the Bank of America 300 IndyCar race, will roar onto Laguna Seca Raceway next weekend for three days beginning Friday.

The weekend's featured race, which will include defending champion Gil De Ferran in the star-studded field, is slated to start at noon Sunday, Sept. 8.

Other veterans expected include Jimmy Vasser, Al Unser Jr., Michael Andretti, Paul Tracy and Bobby Rahal.

ACTIVITIES CELEBRATE LABOR DAY AROUND MONTEREY

A kaleidoscopic choice of events peppers the Monterey Peninsula this Labor Day weekend. Herewith: a sampling.

♦ HARP CONSORT FOR A SUMMER'S EVE

The third annual "Harp Consort for a Summer's Eve," featuring Joel Andrews, Ramon Romero and Amy Krupski will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday at Carleton Hall, located in the Monterey Church of Religious Science. Tickets are $10 in advance/$12 at the door.

♦ GREEK FESTIVAL

The Monterey County Greek Festival will be presented from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday at the Custom House Plaza in Monterey. Admission is free.

Sponsored by Saint John the Baptist Greek Orthodox Church in Salinas, the festival will include live music by the Spartans, various dance groups from the local and Bay Area and Greek cuisine.

♦ CALIFORNIA INDIAN MARKET

The 12th Annual California Indian Market occurs from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at Mission San Juan Bautista, on the lot on Second Street in San Juan Bautista.

Food booths include traditional Native American Fry Bread and a variety of international cuisine.

Prospective vendors, volunteers and sponsors may call: 623-2379.

♦ FREE POP CONCERT ON THE LAWN

A Labor Day tradition, the free pops concert on the lawn returns Monday, Sept. 2 to the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey. The Monterey Bay Symphony will supply a musical salute to great cities of the world.

The concert begins at 2 p.m. Information: 656-2023.

The California Indian Market will feature multi-cultural artists, authors, dancers, singers, storytellers, ethnic fashions and foods.

♦ C.V. GOSPEL FESTIVAL

The Fifth Annual Carmel Valley Gospel Festival is set 11 to 5 p.m. Monday at the Carmel Valley Community Center, located at 25 Ford Road. Admission is free.

The festival will feature local artists Janice Pearl, Bard Sherman and the Temple of Philadelphia Youth Choir. Guests include Michelle Perry, Teddy Randazzo Jr., Jason Ingram and Edmos "All Nations" band.

A barbecue, crafts booths and swimming will also be featured.

Information: 625-3492.

Joel Andrews, master traditional harpist for 30 years, will be featured during the third annual Harp Consort for a Summer's Eve.

MUSIC

Clubs come and go on Cannery Row; Rankin scores Carmel double play

CANNERY ROW, in the span of one month, has lost one nightclub, gained two new club owners and now a new and larger club is on the way. Although the Club House on Wave Street was one of the most popular places for local musicians to play, the jazz and blues venue closed down for good last month.

Citing inconsistent business, owner/proprietor Vince LaRocca was forced to shut the doors on the intimate, upscale venue, which over the years housed a number of popular watering holes, including the original Doc Ricketts' Lab, The Fog Bank, Cafe Orleans and the Old Monterey Brewing Co.

At one time or another, all of these clubs were popular live music venues. Ultimately, however, high rent in relation to "usable" square footage always seemed to spell closure.

LaRocca will continue to operate Viva Monterey on Alvarado Street with acoustic and/or electric music offered six to seven nights a week. His popular Thursday reggae night featuring Jonah and the Whale Watchers will move to his downtown Monterey location.

Swimming onto the scene

A new and larger club, Blue Fin Billiards, is scheduled to open sometime this summer. Located on the second floor of the new Steinbeck Plaza shopping pavilion's east wing, the new club will occupy 12,000-square-feet of space and overlook Monterey Bay.

Co-owners Tony Annigoni, Bruce Brooks and Art Scher will sell food and feature pool tables and live entertainment. According to Annigoni, blues and jazz will be presented on a semi-regular basis. Keep posted for more details.

New club owners Dino Pulgarin and Carolyn Gallagher have been commuting daily from San Jose to their new "home away from home" on Cannery Row, the former Doc Ricketts' Lab. Displaying an eager willingness to adapt to the local market and a more than welcome hands-on approach, the amiable couple have begun in good fashion.

Having changed the popular Monterey live venue's name to Doc's Nightclub is merely one of a few steps taken by the new owners to revive the club's popularity. In addition to establishing a regular and predictable format of music, the new owners have decided to drop the weekend cover charge except on nights featuring bigger acts. A closer look:

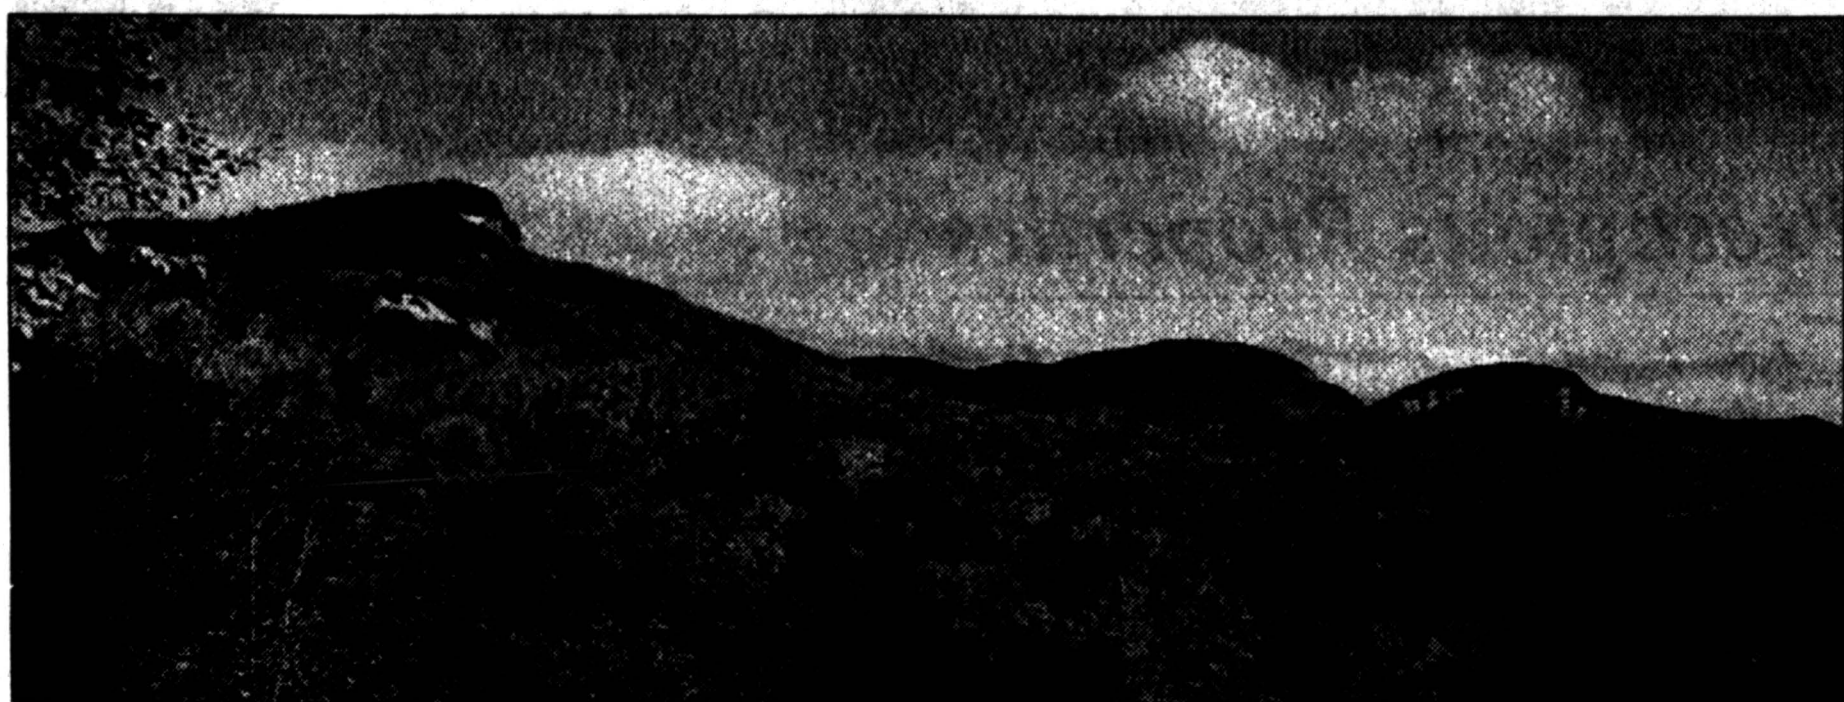

- Tuesday nights will continue to showcase reggae bands;
- Mondays and Wednesdays will feature blues;
- Thursday will offer a much-needed "alternative rock"

A wealth of media will be represented during the Art & Wine Festival at Carmel's Sunset Center. Judging for Best of Show takes place at 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 31. In addition, a silent auction will be held.

Carmel pays tribute to art and wine

CARMEL'S SUNSET Cultural Center supplies the setting for the Seventh Annual Art & Wine Festival, taking place Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 31 and Sept. 1.

Watercolors, oils, acrylics, photography, sculpture, lithography and pottery by more than 80 artists, most of them residents of the Monterey Peninsula, will be on view for judging and sale.

Wine tasting in souvenir wine glasses is set noon to 5 p.m. daily with wines from Bill Bates designed this cartoon especially for the festival.

J. Lohr and Pedroncelli wineries.

The Moss Landing Cafe will offer food for sale and Acoustic Parade provides the musical entertainment.

Judging for Best of Show takes place at 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 31. In addition, a silent auction will be held, containing 10 to 15 pieces of art by local artists.

The proceeds from one of the pieces in the silent auction, by Carmel artist Constance Coleman, will benefit Project St. Bernard, a support group since 1994 of the City of Carmel. The project's goal, as its mission statement reads, is "to promote individual safety and well-being, heighten awareness of specific needs and share community resources."

The event is sponsored by Sunset Cultural Center and the Cultural Commission for Monterey County. All proceeds from the event and from booth fees paid by artists goes to Sunset Cultural Center.

Admission is free. Information: 626-3515.

Performance Carmel announces a diverse season

THE 1996-97 Performance Carmel season, with all programs held in the Sunset Center Theater at San Carlos and Ninth in Carmel, will showcase an eclectic mix of music, dance, theater and film. The season will unfold as follows:

■ Babatunde Olantunji 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5

Nigerian drum virtuoso Olantunji will perform with his eight-piece ensemble Drums of Passion in a celebration of African song, dance and drum ceremonies.

■ Reduced Shakespeare Company 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16

The three members of RSC will present their abbreviated version of the Bible, relying on audience participation, juggling and magic to tell the Greatest Story Ever Told in roughly two hours.

■ Freeway Philharmonic 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 14

This Christmas concert will feature unique versions of traditional carols performed by the only known Chapman Stick, viola, guitar and "drumcussion" quartet. The philharmonic has performed on soundtracks and has opened for the Detroit Symphony.

■ Danny Hoch 8 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 11

Hoch's one-man show features impersonations which "capture the rhythm and cadences" of his characters, from a fast-talking Jamaican disc jockey to a worried Jewish mother to a young Puerto Rican woman. Hoch, who has taught at New York University, was featured in a HBO special in 1994.

■ El Vez

8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 8

Touring with his backup singers, the Elvettes, this Elvis Presley impersonator, aka Robert Lopez, uses high camp to both critique and celebrate Elvis worship, Mexican-American culture, rock music and other aspects of modern life.

■ Faustwork Mask Theater 8 p.m. Saturday, March 8

Using an array of masks and dance techniques, the Theater creates a series of vignettes including an updated version of Beauty and the Beast, an imaginary argument between Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire and stories from the Deep South.

■ Bluestory!

8 p.m. Saturday, April 5

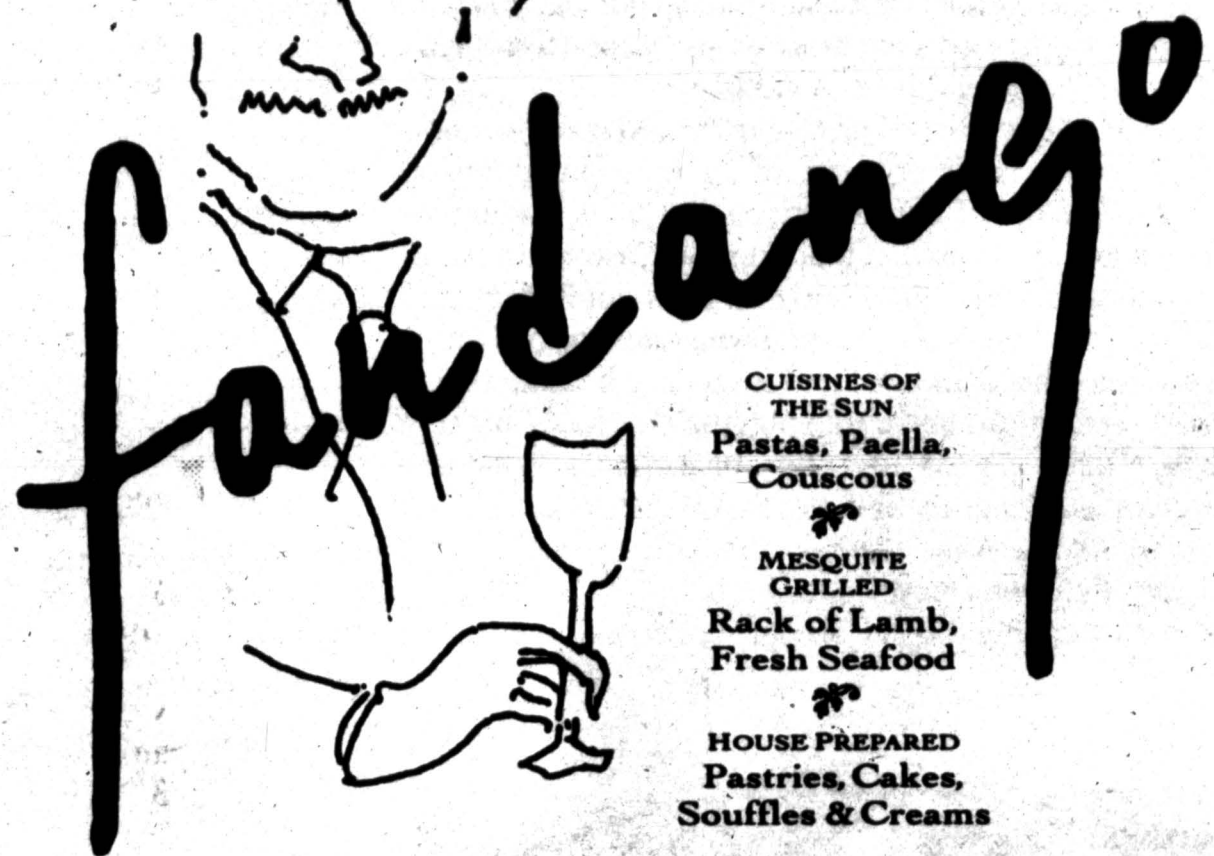

Performing both individually and together, acoustic bluesmen John Cephas night (co-sponsored by rock 'n' roll radio station KMBY); and

■ Rock 'n' roll and rhythm and blues will prevail on Friday and Saturday nights respectively. Saturday nights in September will feature some new blues bands to the area — San Francisco R & B act Johnny Nitro and the Doorslammers on the Sept. 13, guitar slinger Steve Freund on Sept. 20, and Texan Blues Man Willie on Sept. 27.

Tommy Castro sizzles

On Friday, Sept. 6, popular San Francisco blues guitarist Tommy Castro will help kick off the new regime at Doc's with an official grand opening celebration. Castro's a friend of the new owners and heads by far the most popular blues band in San Francisco today. For the past two years, the band has won the prestigious "Club Band of the Year" at the Bay Area Music Awards.

Says S.F. Blues Festival producer Tom Mazzollini about Castro, "Tommy is not only one of the most popular blues artists to come out of San Francisco, but he is also on the verge of stardom... I predict that Tommy Castro will be the next rising star on the blues horizon. He's got it all."

In 1991, after touring with the Dynatoners for two years, Castro formed his own band and it quickly became one of the most popular groups in S.F. playing five to six nights a week. Recently signed to major blues indie Blind Pig Records, Castro and his first nationally distributed record, Exception To The Rule, displays ferocious guitar playing and a very tight four piece band.

Doors for the Sept. 6 performance open at 7 p.m.

Reggae festival invades Sunday

The Monterey Peninsula is not a particularly strong market for reggae, the all-encompassing term for Jamaican popular music. Whereas reggae and other forms of world beat music thrive in Santa Cruz County, interest is limited to a select group on the south side of Monterey Bay.

Thanks to the efforts of certain individuals, however, reggae's presence in Monterey has begun to grow. Sunday's second annual Monterey Bay Reggae Fest '96 at the Monterey Fairgrounds is dedicated to the memory of Robert Brown Jr., a former Seaside resident and festival co-founder who died last year of heart failure.

The efforts of Brown, who was road manager for reggae star Ras Midas, to bring reggae music to the Peninsula have begun to bear fruit. This year's festival featuring Burning Spear, Pato Banton, Boom Shaka, Della Grant, Native Elements and Dub Nation is the continuation of Brown's dream.

Headliner Burning Spear, the elder statesman of reggae, is alone worth the $23 admission. One of the most prominent reggae artists for more than two decades, Burning Spear (aka Winston Rodney) was the headliner at last year's International Reggae Music Awards in New Orleans and with nine nominations was clearly the man of the moment.

Monterey Bay Reggae Fest '96 runs from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday at the fairgrounds. For tickets, call 998-BASS. For more information, call 394-8047 or 372-5863.

Rankin's double play

His name conjures images of a time gone by when soft-pop was the norm. His early albums — Mind Dusters, Like a Seed, Silver Morning — contained soft-pop standards that helped his reputation and audience grow. The career of Kenny Rankin, the quintessential '70s singer/songwriter, now has come full circle.

One of the first pop-rock artists to record an album of standards, Rankin's latest release, Professional Dreamer, is the realization of a lifetime dream.

Said Rankin recently: "When I began making records, it was Nat King Cole-type stuff. I wanted to be a big band singer in the tradition of Sinatra, but that music wasn't commercially viable at the time, so I became a pop singer and put the dream on the back burner."

With the release of Professional Dreamer, Rankin is having his way with the likes of Cole Porter, George and Ira Gershwin and Sammy Cahn.

This week Rankin will perform locally at two separate concerts — at 8 p.m. on Friday at the intimate Jazz Store in Carmel ($20 admission/$10 under 18), 624-6431) and at 5 p.m. Sunday at Carmel Valley Ranch ($10 admission for adults; $5 for children 12 and under, 625-9500 or 624-6431).

The Rankin concert on Sunday will take place outdoors on the golf clubhouse lawn. Three more concerts, yet to be determined, will be held next year at C.V. Ranch.

At both gigs this weekend, Rankin will be accompanied by Robert Redd on piano, Mike McKinley on drums, Nick Williams on bass and Jim Nichols on guitar.

The short of it

■ Eddie's on Fremont Street in Monterey (formerly Virgo's) is occasionally booking live country music...

■ T.G.I.F in Salinas has started booking "alternative rock 'n' roll" bands on Friday nights...

■ Why did the City of Monterey decide that Nick's Place was inappropriate for youths between 18 and 21? Is it better to have teenagers hanging out on street corners?

If the city feels that it is inappropriate for the youth of Monterey to be listening to music at a nightclub (even while alcohol is not being served to anyone), perhaps the city should begin promoting live music and/or other events at the teen center.

■ Stephen Vagnini's "Plugged In" appears every other week in Peninsula.

Kenny Rankin will perform twice this weekend on the peninsula. Three more concerts are slated next year at Carmel Valley Ranch.

Technology's turbulent times: Realtors still struggling

Realtor Information Network was panacea 2 years ago; now gutted

CHICAGO — The National Association of Realtors (NAR) board of directors this week all but abandoned an overly ambitious computer program to control how both Realtors and the public can access real estate information including home listings.

It was another example of the uncertainty and turbulence facing the real estate industry as technology changes how real estate is marketed and how it is bought and sold.

All but gutted at a special NAR board meeting here on Monday, NAR's Realtor Information Network (RIN) was planned as a private computer network, costing the Realtors $16 million. With high hopes two years ago, RIN promised to keep the national trade group at the center of every real estate transaction by giving it control of the computer standard that everyone would use in the real estate market.

Instead, the national trade group lost its footing in the exploding on-line world at a critical time, as hundreds of real estate companies, technology firms and publishing giants offer real estate information on the World Wide Web.

Changes to MLS

The most dramatic change is in the home listing business, or the multiple listing service (MLS) as it is referred to by the real estate industry.

For decades, only Realtors who paid a fee to belong to the MLS had access to it, which meant home buyers and sellers had to go through their local real estate agent to list homes on the MLS or to find out which houses are for sale.

Consequently, the MLS has been a tightly-guarded proprietary data base controlled by several big MLS vendors who offered computer systems to small trade groups around the country. The MLS became a powerful fiefdom within realty trade groups that closely controlled the rights and responsibilities of the listings.

But all that is changing as the Internet offers a convenient way to promote home listings — eroding the role of the traditional MLS.

When a home listing is posted on the Internet, there is usually a picture of the exterior of the house and details about its price and features. In early Web sites, the home addresses were excluded, but now even detailed locations are being added with maps.

The telephone number of the agent representing the seller is also included, keeping the Realtor in the loop. Home buyers on the Internet utilize a computer function called "search engines" to find a home. They tell the computer what kind of a home they want in a specific geographical area and it instantly lists homes on the market.

listing business confusing the traditional MLS business and creating a new online real estate industry. Real estate trade groups, newspapers, realty firms and technology companies are scrambling to put home listings up on the Internet. Here's a closer look:

■ In San Diego, the Union-Tribune newspaper offers home listings in partnership with the local association of Realtors. <http://www.uniontrib.com>

■ In Los Angeles, a private publishing company Listing Link puts up an unlimited number of home listings for $99 a year. <http://www.listinglink.com>

■ The California Association of Realtors has joined hands with the Los Angeles Times to promote home listings. <http://www.car.org/living.htm>

■ Several traditional MLS operations in Southern California are promoting their listings on HomeSeekers, which is owned by Nevada-based NDS Software.

<http://www.homeseekers.com>

■ Major technology firms like Yahoo are offering both the public and real estate firms a way to put home listings on powerful Internet search engines.

<http://www.yahoo.com>

■ Real estate companies such as Coldwell Banker are posting their own listings on their own Internet web sites. Century 21 is expected to announce an arrangement for posting its listings on America Online.

<http://www.Coldwellbanker.com>

■ Also, independent home listing sites are offering home sellers a direct way to market their homes to buyers on the Web through for-sale-by-owner sites. One popular site in California can be found at <http://www.owner.com>.

Let's Talk Real Estate

THE QUIRKS

Every house has some "quirks," and some defects that go a lot further than that. Placing a less-than-perfect house on the market is fine if you and your Realtor give the buyers information on any "hidden defects."

Most litigation in real estate transactions involved buyers suing sellers for failure to disclose something. Whether it is a leaky roof, dry rot, plumbing or heating problems, or a wet basement, most courts do not apply the "let the buyer beware" rule to real estate transactions. Even if the buyers had a structural inspection and the property is solid "as is," you may not get off the hook. Sellers have an obligation to disclose both obvious and hidden defects. Courts have not been sympathetic to sellers who have lived in a house and are in a position to know what works and what doesn't. This is one area where honesty is the only policy.

Some call Carmel a vacation spot.

Quail Meadows was created by Quail Lodge Resort & Golf Club, a recipient of the coveted Mobil Travel Guide's 5-Star Award for 20 years and one of only 23 in the United States.

Quail Meadows is an exclusive, gated community of 56 estate-size home sites, with a choice to build or buy, on 614 acres located where the charm of Carmel meets breathtaking mountain vistas. After 15 years of careful planning for the environment's preservation, the hidden Quail Meadows is the most unique private community in the Carmel area.

Let's Talk Real Estate

THE QUIRKS

with Bill & Pat O'Reilly

Every house has some "quirks," and some defects that go a lot further than that. Placing a less-than-perfect house on the market is fine if you and your Realtor give the buyers information on any "hidden defects."

Most litigation in real estate transactions involved buyers suing sellers for failure to disclose something. Whether it is a leaky roof, dry rot, plumbing or heating problems, or a wet basement, most courts do not apply the "let the buyer beware" rule to real estate transactions. Even if the buyers had a structural inspection and the property is solid "as is," you may not get off the hook. Sellers have an obligation to disclose both obvious and hidden defects. Courts have not been sympathetic to sellers who have lived in a house and are in a position to know what works and what doesn't. This is one area where honesty is the only policy.

For solid advice on buying or selling Real Estate, consult us at
